6. A WORLD FREE FROM CANCER

During the live auction, the BC Cancer Foundation invites you to become our partners in discovery by raising funds in support of the Pancreatic Cancer Research Initiative. This year, nearly 600 British Columbians will be diagnosed with pancreatic cancer and the effects will be devastating—75 per cent of patients won't survive the first year post-diagnosis and only five per cent will survive beyond five years. Even with the most advanced and aggressive treatment, the prognosis for patients with pancreatic cancer is poor, as it is most often detected in an advanced stage and is highly resistant to current therapies. Together we can accelerate groundbreaking discoveries in pancreatic cancer, ultimately improving future patient care with new targeted treatment options. Through your generosity, BC Cancer Agency researchers and clinicians will be able to understand, detect and treat pancreatic cancer more effectively than ever before.

10. LIGHTHOUSE SERIES, NO. 130

At 99, John Koerner is the oldest active member of the Vancouver School of painters, a group that developed modernism in Canadian art. This stunning painting is part of the Lighthouse Series which Koerner began in September 1994, when the Atkinson Point beacon could be seen from his studio window. Here on the West Coast—which is fragmented and embellished by countless islands, channels and fjords—lighthouses are of vital importance to safe navigation. After completing preliminary studies, Koerner realized the symbolic relevance of the lighthouse as a fundamental source of light. He was reminded of the words "The light shines in the darkness and the darkness cannot put it out," and the lighthouse became his symbol of hope, growth and peace.
